WESTERN SERIES OF READERS

VOLUME IX

Stories of Our Western Birds

By ELIZABETH AND JOSEPH GRINNELL

Authors of "Our Feathered Friends," "Birds of Song and Story," Etc.

Richly Illustrated from Selected Photographs and Drawings made especially for this Volume by W. K. Fisher, of Stanford University.

FOR FIFTH AND SIXTH GRADES

The Authors' intentions have been to write a simple narrative which will awaken an interest in bird life among young people, particularly school children. The birds selected are those which are to be found in the vicinity of most any schoolhouse in the west. The accounts are mostly of such a nature that they can be verified by careful observation on the part of the reader. While not in the least technical, the whole work has been compiled with a view to accuracy in every detail. However, enough of imagery has been introduced to give an air of vivacity and in places a certain humor, both of which are necessary in some degree to hold the interest of the younger reader. There is enough of color-description to enable at least the teacher to identify the birds by name, while the illustrations which accompany each chapter will leave no doubt at all.
